BANKRUPT COUNTY LOOMS, SAYS JURY

Friction Between Jail Officials Charged as Rea-

Not Been Put Into Use.

Text of Jury Presentments
in Page 2.

Atlanta clearing house banks were called upon yesterday by the July-August grand jury to aid in stopping waste and extravagance in the Fulton county government.

Unexpectedly returning its final presentments with still another session to be held Friday, the grand jury reiterated its recommendations of a program of retrenchment in expenditures with the warning that, unless this is done, the county will find itself virtually bankrupt.

The jurors again turned their fire
on the majority faction of the county commission, asserting that two of the majority members (meaning the chairman, Dr. C. R. Adams and Commissioner Ed L. Almond) "have not even the courage of their own convictions and have clearly demonstrated by their inaction that they are not capable of independent thought or action."

Recommending that the fire insurance schedule of the county be revised after conferences with insurance authorities, the grand jury accused the changes that were made this year in fire insurance awards by Dr.
Adams, who is also chairman of the buildings and grounds committee.

Insurance Changes.
It pointed out that the insurance
on the courthouse was raised from $10,000 to $15,000 this year, although the building is fireproof, while many wooden structures which are highly inflammable had insurance reduced. The county jail's insurance likewise was raised. It is fireproof also, since remodeling.

Georgian Is Tendered Capital Appointment

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, director of the division of epidemiology in the State Department of Health, has been appointed assistant director of public health for the District of Columbia.
It was announced in Washington yesterday. Dr. Seckinger said here he had not determined definitely whether or not to accept the appointment.
"I understood my name had been placed before District of Columbia authorities for their consideration but I have not accepted any appointment," Dr. Seckinger said. "I have not talked with Dr. T. E. Abernethy, the state director, and will make no decision
until I have conferred with him."
Dr. Seckinger has been with the state department for five years. He is a native of Effingham county and a graduate of the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine as well as that university's school of public health.
He is nationally known as an epidemiologist.

Whisky Offered Monkeys To Bring Them Home

MASSAPEQUA, N. Y., Aug. 27.
(AP)—Straight bourbon whisky, in dozes large enough to snap the kinks
out of any monkey's tail, was substituted for bananas and peanuts in Long Island's great monkey roundup.

With 16 of the more than 150
monkeys that escaped from a wild animal compound last week still missing, searchers poured a case of bourbon into soup plates and set them out in the woods.
They hoped the fugitive monkeys
would have a hilarious night, so they could go out in the morning
and scoop them up off the ground.
L. C. Nicol, animal hunter attached to the compound, said the idea came from an unidentified man
in Montreal, who told of the ease with which 18 escaped monkeys
were captured there last month
after they had been permitted to drink themselves stupid.

At first skeptical, T. A. Loveland, resident manager, pored through volumes of monkey lore and finally came across a passage indicating monkeys have been known to take their whisky neat and wherever they find it.

The place where the whisky was left overnight was a carefully guarded secret.

DUCE'S WARRIORS DESERT TO HAILE

Italian Somalis Flee to Defense of Emperor
With Modern Rifles.

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 27.—(AP)— Reports of the desertion of several thousand Somali troops to the Ethiopian banner reached Addis Ababa today as Emperor Haile Selassie began quitting to pass out reserves of arms
to his black warriors.

The reports said the Somali troops had fled to Ethiopia and Italian authorities had demanded return of their rifles.

Some of Haile Selassie's munitions were drawn from secret underground
chambers built by Emperor Menelik II, uncle of Haile Selassie, and victor
over the Italians half a century ago.

Stored in Churches.
Monolithic churches in northern Ethiopia, hewn from solid rock. Although religious services are held daily in these quaint churches, priests see no harm in storing ammunition in the cellars because a war against Italy would be regarded by them as a "holy war."

The emperor also ordered emptied other secret ammunition caves in the interior, dating from the 14th and 15th centuries.

There was a rush on the national bank as foreigners and natives alike hastened to convert their paper than-don into silver money. More than 100
Greeks, Italians and Armenians left the country.

A picturesque feature of today's preparations was the sending to the southern frontier of 300 camels, laden with munitions. Normally the camels transport spices, frankincense and coffee.

Because of torrential rains in the interior the army is experiencing the greatest difficulty in transporting munitions. Rivers are flooded, bridges down and roads bogged with mud. Men and mules are forced to swing wobbly streams, making it difficult to keep ammunition dry.

A high authority said if Italy attacked, the emperor would lead his army into battle.

ROOSEVELT SEEKS TO DIVERT FUNDS FOR SECURITY USE

Leaders Confident of Obtaining Loans From Relief Appropriations After Parley With McCarl.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—
Out of the money talk that filled a White House conference today came word that most of the New Deal projects endangered by the adjournment of Congress would be saved.

The third deficiency bill, carrying funds for the administration of eight new acts, died under a barrage of words from the Louisiana senator.

Senators and house members emerging from a long conference with President Roosevelt today, at which they reviewed the problem of finding cash elsewhere under the watchful eye of Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, said they were confident funds would be obtained to:

Funds for These Bills.
Start the social security act to going, but perhaps minus aid to crippled children, mothers and the blind.

Set up machinery for the railroad retirement act.

Take care of bus and truck regulation.

Put into operation the new alcohol
control act, the labor relations board, utility regulation and the Guffey coal
law.

Continue the operation of the Bankhead cotton act.

Those were the chief operations which had been endangered, although there were almost a dozen items carried in the supply bill, leaders indicated the most important of these would be taken care of.

COUNTY-AID ASKED FOR SEWER NEEDS

Committee Favors Request for $500,000 for Proposed Improvements

Fulton county will be asked to supplement the $1,775,000 city bond issue for schools and sewers by another $500,000 it council at its meeting Tuesday approves a move launched yesterday by the sewer committee.

The county's portion will be devoted exclusively to matching WPA funds for purchase of materials in construction of large trunk sewers and disposal units, which are a vital part of the sewer development, under the committee's plan.

It was pointed out that this fund
would not include the county's portion of the expense incident to operation and maintenance of the disposal plants after they have been erected.

From the inception of the sewer program it has been understood by city and county officials that Fulton county would be asked to make a substantial contribution to the undertaking, inasmuch as county residents would benefit.

Debtor-Hitching Not for U. S.

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1935, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

TAOS, N. M., Aug. 27.—To stop loose talk and possibly in view of an expected heavy Italian tourist trade later, Emperor Haile Selassie has ordered all chained debtors off the streets. When an Ethiopian is broke, the creditor takes him in towel until the debtor is ready to pay up. A chain is wound around the delinquent's wrist, and all day
he is led around at the pleasure of the other fellow. When his customary drops in somewhere, he is left hitched outside like a horse.

Over there, should anybody inquire where an insolvent is, the reply is: "Oh, the last I saw him, he was out on the links."

The system would never do for Americans. The way things are with us, it wouldn't be any time until we had only two classes, taxpayers and blacksmiths.

Incidentally, the Ethiopian emperor is such a benighted savage
that he wants to deny his people
the pleasures and privileges of modern warfare. Why, actually, he doesn't want to conquer anybody or take anybody's country or even run anybody else's business. Even so, I can't help admiring the old fellow somehow. As the quaint Scotch ballad goes: "I Love Selassie."

Soviet Reply to Communism Protest Is Unsatisfactory to Washington

Secretary Hull and Roosevelt To Discuss Note Before Making Answer; Russian Ambassador to U. S. Declines Comment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The state department considers Moscow's reply to the American protest against communist activities in this country unsatisfactory, it was indicated tonight.

Calling R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state, and Robert F.
Kelley, chief of the eastern European division, into consultation, Secretary of State Hull gave the dispatches his immediate consideration.

A conference with Mr. Roosevelt was expected before announcement is made of what further action, if any,
is to be taken by the United States.

Alexander Troyanovsky, the soviet ambassador, said he had received a summary of the Russian reply from Moscow, but declined comment.

In a statement last night, Troyan-ovsky made counter-charges of persistent anti-soviet propaganda in this country. He said it was much worse than anything that might have been said or done by American communists attending sessions of the Third International in Moscow.

Nobody at the state department seemed to be surprised at the tone or temper of the note. It had been rather generally expected that Moscow would adhere to its historical position that the soviet government has no connection and is not responsible for the actions of the world communist organization.

U. S. To Stand Ground.
The United States, it was indicated, will stand its ground in opposition to any policy of communist propaganda in this country. In preparation for that stand state department officials dug out the letter which Maxim Lit-vinov, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, wrote to President Roosevelt in November, 1933, when recognition of Moscow was under consideration.

Part of that letter read:
"The soviet pledges itself not to permit the formation or residence on its (the United States) territory of any organization or group . . . which has as an aim the overthrow of . . .
the political or social order of the whole or any part of the United States or its territories or possessions."

One point that American diplomats cannot understand is why Moscow denies knowledge of the meeting of the international congress of communism
when Joseph Stalin and other high officials sat on the platform during the Moscow meetings.

In that connection it was emphasized that, from a historical standpoint, the soviet government has no connection with the communist organization.

WHITE TAKES LEAD IN MISS. RUN-OFF

Johnson Trails by 2,962
Votes in Partial Tabulation of Ballots.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 27.—(AP)—
With more than 150,000 votes counted, Hugh White, wealthy lumberman, led in the runoff election tonight
held a lead of 2,962 votes over Paul Johnson, Hattiesburg attorney, in Mississippi's run-off primary for the democratic gubernatorial nomination.

It was estimated more than 200,
000 ballots were cast after an unusually heated campaign, and it seemed certain an official count would be needed to determine the winner, as the lead changed hands several times during the first few hours of the count.

With 1,926 of the state's 1,638 precincts reported, White had 78,923
while Johnson had 75,961. The returns were from 74 of the 82 counties, none complete.

Gunplay in which one was killed
and four wounded flared at one point
as the voters wrote their decision after a furious campaign. White and his chief aide, Senator Theobald, tried to make Huey Long the chief issue of the drive by charging Johnson with being a vassal of the Louisiana "dictator," while Johnson just as vehemently denied he had wanted Long's support.

Election day was marked by a riot
at the Lorena voting precinct in Smith county in which B. E. Bruce, 38, a left ditched outside like a horse.

Johnson's supporters claimed the early returns came from the cities and small towns where White is strong.
They said that returns from the rural districts would show Johnson well in the lead.

Managers of each candidate expressed confidence. Johnson's manager said that if he lost, he would not be returned. White's manager said he would not be returned.

White's spokesman in Jackson said
his candidate would be in the lead by 20,000 majority when the final figures were tabulated.

The trend of the vote was swapped back and forth several times in the unofficial tabulations up to the middle of the evening.

Milk Bottle Cap Money Brings Laughs and Curses in Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 27.—(AP)—
The lovely milk bottle cap became real money in Missouri today—and the fun was on.

Some laughed at the caps. Some cursed them. Some "matched" with them as they would with pennies. But each cardboard disc, stamped with a value of either one or five mills,
played its role in a sales tax program
expected to yield $12,000,000 annually for old age pensions, relief and schools.

Banks Sold Out.
Thirty million caps were made available for the collection of the one per cent sales tax which went into effect today. The supply was far from enough. All St. Louis banks reported a "sell-out" before noon. A Kansas City factory continued to grind out the tokens at a cost to the state of $520 a million.

HIGH COURT TO ACT ON TVA AND AAA EARLY IN OCTOBER

Power Firms Also Planning Quick Test of Constitutionality of Public Utilities Holding Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—
Actions challenging and defending the constitutionality of two prime New Deal enactments—the TVA and the AAA—today were brought into the new chamber of the supreme court.

A prompt test of the constitution-ality of the public utilities act also was projected—even though holding company sections of the measure do not become effective until 1938.

The high tribunal thus again focused national interest upon the controversy over how far the present administration can proceed under the constitution. Questions of high political moment were involved.

The actions today were:
A request by the Justice Department
for a review of the Hoosac Mills case, attacking the ruling of the Boston circuit court that the collection of AAA processing taxes was unconstitutional;
Completion of a brief by stockholders of the Alabama Power Company, challenging the right of the Tennessee Valley Authority to purchase transmission lines and provide surplus power to municipalities.

The two cases, seen by some as the start of a parade of recent New Deal laws to the supreme court, will bring to four the alphabetical issues
before the tribunal.

Challenge on Docket.
Already on the docket are a Texas
planter's challenge of the validity of the ginning tax imposed by the Bankhead cotton control act, and another case contesting the donation of money
by the PWA to aid a municipality in setting up an electric light plant in competition with a privately owned and operated plant.

The court will reassemble on October 1.

TWO-CENT SUBSIDY FIXED FOR COTTON

Officials Rush to Clarify
10-Cent Loan Plan; Sept.
4 Date Set for '35 Pool.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—
Working feverishly to draft regulations for the 1935 cotton marketing program, AAA officials announced today that subsidy payments to farmers will not exceed 2 cents a pound.

The first explanatory
statement issued as officials struggled in continuous conferences to amplify the hurried 10-cent loan announcement made yesterday to hasten adjustment of congress.

Almost every high executive of the farm administration was attending one or more of the meetings held by the Agriculture Department, the Treasury and the White House.

May Be Higher.
The 2-cent limit on the subsidy was fixed after reports spread that payments might be much larger. This was not mentioned in the announcement Monday, and early today some officials said payments might come to 3 or 4 cents a pound or more if the price of cotton should drop.

The new loan-subsidy plan provides that adjustment contract signers may obtain loans of 10 cents a pound on cotton produced under their Bankhead allotments.

The farmers will receive as a subsidy an amount equal to the difference between 12 cents and the daily average price on the day the cotton is sold, providing the price is not below 10 cents.

If the price drops below 10 cents, which Chester C. Davis, the AAA administrator, said was "highly improbable," the price would be 10 cents.

Newfoundland Storm Kills Forty Persons

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Aug.
27.—(AP)—A hurricane which swept across Newfoundland over the weekend killed 40 persons, available estimates tonight indicated.

Reports reached land of more seamen drowned or missing after the terrific gale had visited this section.

Ships were sunk at sea or left drifting helplessly with their crews apparently swept to death.

Seventeen men were listed as almost certainly dead, lost from schoolers or down with their ships. About 20 were believed to have been on five ships drifting off the coast with no sign of life aboard and six more were on one schooner, still unreported.

The storm played havoc with communication lines over the island and many isolated villages that send men
to sea had not been heard from.

Big Road Projects Mapped, Waiting Arrival of Money

Chairman Wilburn Says
Georgia Board Ready to Launch Greatest Program of Building in Commonwealth History.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Designated to end the long-standing controversy over release of some $10,000,000
of federal highway funds the United States Bureau of Public Roads today drafted a letter to the Georgia Highway Board inviting the re-establishment of former friendly relations and asking the board to submit a program of projects for spending the new money.

The effect of the bureau's letter, written by Chief Thomas H. MacDonald in collaboration with Representative Carl Vinson, dean of the Georgia house delegation and storm center of the much-controverted Ball's Ferry bridge project, is to write the word
"finis" across the protracted state highway dispute, it was declared.

The federal bureau, according to Representative Vinson, has yielded on objections raised by the state board to two of the five proposals recently made by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for settlement of the controversy and has opened the way for immediate release of the funds.

No mention is made of the Ball's Ferry bridge, stumbling block to former negotiations. This presumably will be left to future determination
after conference between the state board and the public roads bureau,
in keeping with the compromise plan
suggested by Secretary of Agriculture
George, of Georgia, and accepted by Washington.

Mahan Suspect Held For Fingerprint Check

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 27.—(AP)— Another lead apparently fizzled tonight in the hunt for scar-faced William John Weyerhaeuser kidnaper.
Detective James Mooney, of Butte, who knows Mahan, took a look at a man named as a suspect by Helena officers and announced the captive
was not the elusive fugitive.

The man held here insisted he is Les McGowan, of Spokane, a carnival worker.

Nevertheless, police decided to detain him and a companion until their fingerprints and descriptions can be checked by the Department of Justice.

Mooney recognized Mahan on a street at Butte last June. Mahan escaped over a fence, abandoning a car in which was found a $15,000 ransom
of the 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser,
son of a Washington lumber family.

DEKALB POLICE TO BEAR CHIEF'S BODY TO GRAVE

Final Rites for W. O. Parker
To Be Held at 3 O'Clock
This Afternoon

Borne on the shoulders of the men of his command, Chief W. O. Parker, of the DeKalb county police, will be laid to rest this afternoon while high officials of state, county and city governments and church, business and civic leaders pay a last silent tribute.

Final rites will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Decatur Presbyterian church. The Rev. Robert Ivey, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, of which the chief was a deacon, and the Rev. W. H. Major, pastor of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church, will eulogize the man who served his community with devotion to the trust which had been placed in him.

Officers To Be Pallbearers.
His brother officers who will serve as pallbearers will be: Captains J. T. Dailey and A. L. Hutchins and Officers George Jackson, V. B. Hill, R. G. Smith and C. M. Cloud. Officials of the DeKalb county courthouse will serve as an honorary escort.

"I do not know of a man anywhere who can take Chief Parker's place," said Commissioner C. A. Matthews, of DeKalb county, yesterday. And this thought will be in the hearts of those who attend the final services.

Chief Parker's devotion to duty was, in a measure, responsible for his death. He died Monday afternoon following an operation for the removal of the left kidney. It is thought that he suffered the injury which necessitated the kidney's removal during the capture of a fleeing criminal.

Splendid Record.

The chief had been head of the DeKalb county police since March 31, 1934, when he had been chosen by Commissioner Matthews to succeed John Rasbury. He had made a splendid record in the enforcement of law in the county under his jurisdiction. It was his habit to lead his men in person on dangerous assignments. He had been responsible for the breaking up of several auto theft rings and for the arrest of numerous dangerous criminals.

Before joining the DeKalb police force he had had wide experience as a businessman in Atlanta. He had been a resident of Atlanta and Decatur ever since he was a small boy. He was a native of Jonesboro. Funeral will be in the mausoleum at Crown Hill cemetery.

JURY INDICTS THREE FOR FORGING CHECKS

True Bill Also Names Jack Kelly as $3,000 Jewel Robber.

Three persons yesterday were named by the July-August grand jury in true bills charging forgery of checks.

H. L. Harris was indicted on six counts for fictitious checks for small amounts, and Bill Bailey, alias Bill Ball, was indicted for cashing a check for $40 on the First National Bank and one for $35 on the Citizens' & Southern National Bank. James Wright was named in a true bill for forging a $10 check on the First National.

Robert Jones and Robert Ousler, negroes, were indicted for throwing rocks at County Policeman John Carter last week. Carter was called to a negro dwelling to quiet a disturbance, but found no disorder. While searching along a nearby road he was hit on the hand by a rock thrown from the bushes.

A true bill named Jack D. Kelly,

Laundrymen Pro Tem Leaves Richer by $25

He was described as a short, fat man. Mrs. Canaby told police she had never seen him before.

white, as the burglar who stole $3,000 worth of jewelry and personal articles from the home of W. D. Ransom. The jewelry was the property of Mrs. Ethel Ransom.

Otis West was indicted for the murder of Pete Wright, after the case was brought to the grand jury from the recorder's court. It was charged that West stabbed Wright on August 23.

J. D. Creel, former employee of Rogers & Nash, Inc., was indicted for larceny after trust. The charge against him was that he converted to his own use $950 which he got by selling some adding machines belonging to his employers.

Harry Ballenger, of a local hotel, was named in a true bill for making horse racing books. He was arrested several days ago by county policemen. Of 27 indictments considered by the jury yesterday only two no-bills were returned. One freed W. T. Rogers of charges of reckless disregard for human life which grew out of an automobile accident in which Benjamin and Joseph Dunn and Mary Jane Person were injured. The other cleared C. C. Minnix and Ruth Spain of charges of robbing J. W. Astin of $13 on August 22.

EXPANDED COURSE URGED FOR NURSES

Dr. George Sparks Tells of Need for Well-Rounded Education.

The need of an extension of the curriculum of schools of nursing to include the social aspects of the profession, was outlined yesterday by Dr. George Sparks, director of the evening school of the University of Georgia, in a talk before the Grady Hospital Alumnae Association.

He told the members of the association of the increasing demands for nurses in the hospitals and public health organizations who have a more rounded education, in order to care more efficiently for the ill and to teach better the preventive measures of medicine.

He outlined the newly established pre-nursing course now being given at the evening school, which includes courses in the social sciences, English, history and some of the physical aspects of nursing education.

Dr. Sparks urged the graduate nurses to take advantage of the adult education in preparing themselves to render better service.

72,922,458 POUNDS OF TOBACCO SOLD

Incomplete Returns Show Income of $13,845,274 to Farmers.

Georgia's 1935 leaf tobacco sales had mounted to 72,922,458 pounds at a total income to growers of $13,845,274.67 yesterday on the basis of incomplete warehouse returns.

Announcing these figures, Garland Bagley, statistician for the State Department of Agriculture, said sales for the closing week were lacking from two houses in Moultrie and one in Waycross.

With these missing, last week's totals were 8,273,318 pounds at an average of 13.27 cents per pound, amounting to $1,103,539.58.

The auctions have more than doubled the 1934 crop. Last year 33,673,474 pounds were marketed for $6,200,761.96.

Bagley said the market at one or two towns, including Vidalia, will not close until the end of this week.

CHURCH MOVIE SHOWN FOR 'WEEK OF STUDY'

Noted Speakers To Address Feature Assemblies at Church Tonight.

Religious motion pictures shown yesterday by Edwin S. Preston, state secretary of Georgia Baptist Training Union, featured the second day's sessions of the 1935 "Week of Study," which is now in progress at the First Baptist church. E. E. Lee, of Dallas, Texas, addressed the assembly last night on "The Duties and Deductions."

William Hall Preston, of Nashville, secretary of the Baptist Student Union, and Miss Winnie Rickett, of Raleigh, N. C., state secretary of North Carolina, will talk to the two feature assemblies tonight. Miss Rickett will speak in the main auditorium and Mr. Preston will talk in the chapel of the church.

Many out-of-town students already have enrolled in the "Week of Study." Mrs. Franklin Beasley, chairman of the registration committee, reported that one pupil had registered from Berlin, Germany. Other members signed up from various points in Florida, while a great number were present at the first two sessions from many towns around Atlanta.

The publicity director of each church which reaches its enrollment goal during the school will have an opportunity to win a trip to the south-west conference in Birmingham in December or a week's entertainment at the 1936 state encampment at Shorter College, Rome, next June. The association also is offering surprise awards to all publicity directors who reach their goals. Eight loving cups will be awarded to the unions having the highest percentage of their members attending the daily sessions and taking the final exams.

FEATHER IN HER HAT

By Julie Anne Moore

Ann Rogers and Rita Manley, back in Ellenville from college, get civil service jobs in Washington. Rita knows Bill Hudson, correspondent there for a New York paper. He is a friend of Mollie Winslow, special writer on the globe, with whom the girls stay temporarily. Mollie gets a mysterious phone message that Patricia Wells, Sen. Runbreaker's secretary, is lying murdered in the Lincoln Memorial's reflecting pool but he is at her office door when she hangs up. Later the same voice phones that Dennis Runbreaker's son is a murder victim and that the senator jumped from the Washington monument. Ann meets Lee Mowday, a friend of Mollie's, who is a famous aviator. Carl Palmer, Department of Justice agent, makes his attentions to Rita. The senator discharges Wells at Rita's instigation. At a dinner given by Rita a bomb explodes and she is found dead in the pool, wire twisted about her neck. Wells' death is reported as a suicide but Rita tells Bill he is a murderer. She says she planted the dummy body to cause excitement at the dinner. Up in a plane with Lee, Ann is surprised when they land at Ellenville. Returning, they are wrecked on a mountain. Ann escapes with a scar on her forehead but Lee is killed. A searching plane finds them a day later. Mollie, returning with the president's wife from Boston, picks Ann up in their car at Ellenville.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

The weeks passed and Mollie heard nothing more about the new investigation. Her work at The Globe was keeping her very busy. Bill Hudson had developed a curious case of melancholia, confided and refused to offer any explanation of his strange conduct. The case between Carl and Rita had developed to the point where trouble threatened unless he made a clean cut with Selma, which, until now, he had carefully refrained from doing. And Ann?

"The one member of the gang I'd expect to keep her life free of complications," Mollie told herself in one of her reflective moods, "and look turns out to be the most vexing problem I have."

No sooner had Ann left the hospital after letting Lee slip the engagement ring on her finger than she had taken it off and tucked it away in her purse. She had sworn Rita to secrecy, knowing that Lee would say nothing until he had heard it from other quarters, and for three weeks Rita had gone around in a fever of suppressed excitement. Then one night when Ann had gone to the library, she whispered it to Mollie, and Mollie, in a glow of happiness, spent two hours hunting for Bill and finally located him in a place called the Parakeet.

Bill had more drinks than he cared to admit. Mollie never drank liquor and Bill never insisted. He ordered her a bottle of ginger ale and listened to her jubilant announcement with as little evident emotion as if she had informed him of some change in the weather.

"Great . . .," he said. "Yes, sir, that's fine. The perfectly splendid. Bill's perfectly splendid. It was as if those words had been forced out against an almost overpowering revulsion of feeling."

It was a thoroughly sobered Mollie who said after a troubled silence: "If I wish you could tell me what it is, Bill. You can't go on this way indefinitely. You're eating your heart out about something, and if you don't get it off your chest you'll turn up in the morgue one of these days."

He looked it, too. He was thin, there were telltale patches under his eyes, and much of his usual fine countenance had gone.

"I've thought about the morgue angle," he said gravely. "Some people can do that sort of thing. I can't."

"Exactly," said the officer, nodding, following her reasoning. "A very important piece of information, Miss Winslow. I'll have a talk with all the Runbreakers tomorrow, including the senator."

From police headquarters Mollie went to Bill's room, to her frustration, to find him in a state of astonishment, found him in "I want you to come up to the apartment tonight. No nonsense now; this is important. Let's have a phone minute, please." She called Selma Runbreaker and when Selma demurred, she said, quietly, "Be there about eight, honey, or wish you had. And I'm depending on you to get hold of Carl and bring him along."

And into this sober gathering in Mollie's apartment came Ann, smiling but uneasy and, perhaps for the first time in her life, painfully self-conscious.

By tacit agreement, no one mentioned Lee's name in Ann's presence, and though she had regretted a thousand times that she had not followed Mrs. Monday into Lee's room and given her an opportunity to recant her arbitrary judgment, Ann tried, and in a degree succeeded, in restricting Lee to a tiny corner of her mind. Sometimes, however, he beat his way out of the narrow limits she assigned him and earnestly protested the injustice of what she had done; and once she dreamed they were again lying on the grass beside the little stream at the foot of the mountain on which they had cracked up, and she awoke to find her pillow wet with tears.

November was torn from the calendar and early in December life had settled down to a quiet routine. If there had been any developments in the police probe, not even Mollie had been apprised of the fact. Rita was going out with Carl as often as he could get away from Selma; and when he could not, he usually managed to bring Selma up for the entire evening. "These little pop visits are bad for our nerves," she said. "Stay awhile and we get used to the feeling of holding onto a live wire."

When two weeks after her return to the apartment, Bill Hudson had not put in another appearance, Ann spoke to Mollie about it.

"He's trying to drink himself to death about something," Mollie said, grimly. "It's one of his women, I suppose, but I've never before seen him down and out the way he is now."

The next evening Ann went to Bill's office. A man was busy there; he had no idea where Bill could be found.

"It's terribly important," Ann said, in a thin earnestly pleading voice. "I've simply got to find him."

The man wheeled around. "If you know of anything more important than holding on to a live wire, I'll be in here twice this week. I'm doing my best to cover for him, but the office is holding on to know what hospital he's in. When they find out he's not down with pneumonia, we'll both be canned. . . . Try any joint where they sell booze," he suggested, desperately. "He's not here; he's in alcohol—and nobody knows why."

With the aid of a crude map hastily drawn by Bill's assistant, Ann began a diligent, systematic search after almost two hours found Bill at the Parakeet staring at the floor, an empty glass before him. When he looked up, she was standing on the opposite side of the table, leaning over the chair there.

"Oh, hello," he said, getting to his feet. "Out of your territory, aren't you—Run? . . . Well, we won't start by battling. Sit down there and I'll order you a glass of milk."

Ann saw instantly that Bill was not well. Mollie had said he was thin and pale. He was very thin and there was practically no color at all in his face now.

"How'd you ever stumble into this dive, Ann?" He had lost patience with the bartender and gone after the small bottle of milk and the glass himself. "No use to ask you to come here, because nobody knew where I was. How's that for pure logic?" He was not drunk but obviously he was trying to pretend he was drunk. "How's everything going, Bill?" Where've you been keeping yourself?" Ann asked, sipping the milk. "I haven't seen you in a while."

Bill pulled his chair around with the back to the wall and lighted a cigar.

"Been busy," he said. "Busier than busy. I'll be getting back in the habit soon. Nosing around the apartment, I mean."

"Sure?"

"He was bending over the table now, a curious smile on his lips. "Darned if I didn't forget all about it. Congratulations."

The DEBUNKER

THE ELDEST SON IS NOT USUALLY THE ABLEST

Most of the world's wealth has been passed down to the "first born," but many psychologists believe that the last children to be born in a family are usually the most capable. They say that the older the parents when the child is born, the more intelligent is the child. Examples are numerous, including Mohammed (twentieth child), Benjamin Franklin (fifteenth child), John Jacob Astor, James Daniel Webster, John Barrymore, Lord Nelson, William Pitt, John Wesley, Julius Caesar, Francis Bacon, W. C. Clegg, Marshal Foch, George Bernard Shaw, Charles Darwin and George Washington. All these were "younger sons."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

BIGHORNS OF THE WEST.

In the Rocky mountains and other ranges of the west live Bighorn sheep. They are famous for their horns, and for their skill in climbing steep cliffs.

The horns of the rams are of great size, and are much-curved. In record cases, rams' horns have been found to be from 40 to 45 inches long, when measured around the curves. The right and left horns usually differ a little in length. Thus one large ram was found to have a right horn three feet and seven inches long, and a left horn measuring three feet and eight inches.

The females, or ewes, also have horns; but their horns are not nearly so long or so much curved.

Bighorn sheep once lived in valleys as well as in highlands; but after the

It is enough to take one's breath away to watch a Bighorn climbing a steep cliff. It can make use of a ledge four inches square, and may spring from that to another ledge three or four feet higher up. As it keeps going up "sheep ladder," it makes use of little shelves and bulges in the face of the cliff.

Going down, the Bighorn seems even more daring. Again it makes use of small shelves and ledges; and sometimes descends between two walls of rock, several feet apart, leaping first to one wall and then to the other. The animals have been known to make sheer downward leaps as great as 20 feet without coming to harm. In such cases they land with their legs stretched in such a way as to break the fall.

Now and then a Bighorn does get hurt, or even killed, during dangerous climbing. But in general they go safely on their way. They are more sure-footed than any other animals on our continent, except possibly mountain goats.

The mating season comes in January, and during that month there are many fights between rams. Using a rep- tie slope on the mountain side, they back off and face each other from a distance of perhaps 100 feet. Then they charge, and butt heads on. It has been estimated that they are going about 20 miles per hour when they clash.

The rivals suffer hard jolts, but usually are able to back away and charge again. Sometimes they strike each other five or six times before one of them is disabled or decides he will leave the field to his opponent.

MAJOR FEY ESCAPES
DEATH IN AUTO CRASH

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—(P)—Major Emil Fey, who has had many narrow escapes since he became politically prominent, escaped death again tonight when his automobile crashed into a tree near Parkersdorf, not far from Vienna.

Tonight's accident was said to have been caused when a bicycle appeared suddenly from the darkness in front of Fey's automobile. A sudden application of the brakes caused the car to skid.

Fey's injuries were described officially as minor—the bridge of his nose was said to have been broken—but the outcome of a complete surgical examination was not announced immediately.

COX DENOUNCES LONG FOR COTTON LOAN LOSS

Georgia Delegation Laments
Failure of Fight for 12-Cent Figure.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Failure of congress to provide a 12-cent loan for cotton was lamented here today by Georgia's congressional delegation, which unanimously battled for favorable action up to the last minute before sine die adjournment last night.

One member, Representative Eugene Cox, of Camilla, bitterly denounced Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, whose six-hour filibuster blocked even cotton loan compromise.

With adjournment of the long-drawn-out session, practically all of the Georgia congressmen and the two senators were trying plans today for returning to their homes. Several, in fact, lost no time in making their arrangements and departed during the day.

Wanted Renewal.
The compromise loan plan entered into by President Roosevelt with the senators from cotton-growing states in order to break the deadlock which prevented congress from adjourning last Saturday was only mildly received by the Georgians who felt, and still feel, that growers were entitled to receive a renewal of the 12-cent loan.

Senator Walter F. George emphatically pronounced disappointment because the 12-cent loan did not materialize.

"The compromise plan," he said, "will undoubtedly be carried into operation but it's not what I wanted, even though it amounts to a 12-cent loan."

can appreciate the necessity of moving the 1935 crop of cotton into commerce both domestic and foreign, but I was wholly unwilling to yield to demands of exporters and shippers, and split the loan as the compromise plan proposes to do. We may as well understand that the subsidy will not continue beyond the present crop year, and the loan of 10 cents fixes the maximum price of cotton as long as the cotton program continues, in my opinion."

Senator George Active.
Senator George took a prominent and active part in the last-minute move to have the 12-cent loan amendment tacked onto the third deficiency appropriation bill which went to defeat because of Senator Long's filibuster.

The junior senator from Georgia, Richard B. Russell Jr., praised the plan which assures 12 cents a pound for cotton, but along with other delegation members regretted the compromise which fixed a subsidy instead of an outright loan.

"Under the plan forced from the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Department of Agriculture by the cotton states senators," he declared, "the farmer is assured at least 12 cents a pound for his cotton. I would have preferred an outright 12-cent loan for this year because everyone expected it and had planned accordingly, and for this reason I was opposed to withdrawal of the 12-cent loan amendment."

However, the third deficiency appropriation bill, to which the amendment was fixed, was killed in the dying hours of the session, so nothing further can be done.

Points Good Features.
"The new plan has many good features and will again place American cotton in an advantageous position in the competition now being forced by other countries to take over export cotton trade, but the plan should have been announced earlier."

Representative Carl Vinson, of Millersville, dean of the state's delegation, agreed with other members that the compromise plan is better than nothing.

"We did the best we could," he said, "but of course we had not control over the unfortunate senate filibuster. The compromise is a pronounced improvement over the nine-cent loan plan but I still believe we should have received the 12-cent loan."

Regrettable Performance.
Representative Cox, in commenting on the antics of the "Kingfish," declared:

"The performance of the senior senator from Louisiana in tying up congress to the very hour of adjournment is most regrettable. It could and possibly will prove disastrous except for the assurance of better consideration of our cotton growers by the secretary of agriculture."

In reviewing the many questions "vital affecting the welfare of our people" during the closing days of the session, Representative Bryant Castellow, of Cuthbert, said:

"Many questions vital affecting the welfare of our people were pressed for consideration and action during the closing days of the long and busy session of congress just ended."

Not Difficulties.
"The entire Georgia delegation, senators and representatives, were most diligent and co-operative in an effort to secure for the farmers of the south at least a favorable consideration as was accorded them in the past year. In this undertaking, however, they met with many stubborn difficulties and the most determined effort did not succeed, with the aid of other delegations, in securing the compromise just announced by the agriculture department regarding cotton for the present season."

"This is a distinct improvement over the plan first prepared by the department as a loan of 10 cents per pound on this year's cotton is not available instead of 9 cents, and the additional sum to be paid under the producer for the purpose of bringing the sale price of his cotton to 12 cents will be figured upon the daily average price at the 10 spot markets instead of being figured upon the average price existing the four months immediately preceding January 1, 1935."

"The refusal of the department to make a direct loan of 12 cents per pound is a distinct disappointment to me as I know it will be a great majority of our Georgia farmers. Such a policy would not only have been helpful to them but would have been of material benefit to our merchants and industries."

Grower's Comment.
Representative Paul Brown, of Ellenton, said:

"The failure to make a 12-cent loan on cotton is a mistake, especially in view of the fact it was generally believed in the cotton belt that a loan of 12 cents would be made and which promised and this promise should be carried out. It looks like those administering the AAA so far as cotton is concerned have yielded to the shipping interests, and this will certainly prove disastrous to the cotton growers of the south."

"I am afraid that with the announcement of a 9-cent loan cotton will now be sold at approximately 9 cents a bushel. This means a reduction to the producer of approximately 25 per cent. This is unfair and unjust to the cotton grower, especially in view of the fact that much of the cotton is now being gathered and is being marketed. If they were going to make an announcement of a 9-cent loan, they certainly should have done so before cotton was planted and not wait until this late date."

"The cotton farmers of the south have been expecting and had a right to expect at least 12 cents for the allotment of the 1935 crop and not be forced to sign for 1936 crop until they obtain the difference between the market price, which will probably be 9 cents, and 12 cents per pound."

Solons Start Homeward.
Senator George left for his home in Vienna, Ga., this afternoon, and Senator Russell will depart for his home in Windor, Ga., as soon as he completes work on some departmental matters in which he is interested.

All the house members with the exception of Representative Castellow probably will leave for Georgia within the next two or three days, it was learned. Mr. Castellow does not wish to return to Washington until shortly before the opening of the next session in January, so he will remain here long enough to clear his desk of all matters.

Representative Ramspeck will leave for Atlanta by motor early tomorrow morning, making the trip in leisurely fashion. Representative Owen, of Griffin, is planning on leaving late tonight or early tomorrow in company with Representative Cox.

Representative Vinson expects to remain here until Friday or Saturday.

JURY CALLS ON BANKS TO AID WAR ON WASTE

Bob Holland, in charge at Fulton tower, and W. T. Turner, jail engineer, was revealed by the jury's investigation. A new exercise roof for the prisoners and a new electric clock system installed in June have not been used at all due to this friction, it was said. The juryman stated that improvements should be put in use immediately.

The current grand jury, which has been investigating county affairs for seven weeks, criticized the majority faction of the county board for buying parks and naming them after one of the commissioners "whose service to date has not warranted such an honor." (Editor's Note: The grand jury's presentations did not mention the parks or commissioners referred to by name.) The jury declared that a new juvenile detention home, which is badly needed in Fulton county, could have been erected with the money the county spent on parks.

For Purity of Courts.
In order that courts should not be under suspicion of personal or political obligations, the jury recommended that the salaries of judges should be fixed by the legislature and not by the county commission. The judges of the superior court had their salaries fixed by the general assembly but the salaries of the municipal court judges are not definitely set.

The juryman pointed out that when the legislature put the maximum salary of the municipal court judges at "not more than $8,400 for the chief judge and not more than $7,500 for the other judges," the county commission immediately raised the chief judge (Luther Ross Jr.) from $7,500 to the maximum allowed and the other judges from $6,800 to the maximum of $7,500.

"If the municipal court judges and their officers are to be relieved from the criticism of political activities under which they have rested for many years, they must be removed entirely from the suspicion of personal or political obligation to the county commissioners," the jury presents said.

Favors Popular Elections.
It recommended that the marshal and the clerk of the municipal court be elected by the people and not selected by the judges.

The final presentations returned yesterday were delivered to Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court by George W. McCarty, former chairman of the grand jury, in the presence of the entire body.

It was an unusual procedure that the final recommendations of the jury were returned before the last meeting of the body.

The July-August jury is to go out of office Friday and it was thought that possibly this body will have more to say concerning county affairs. If so, the further recommendations will be returned in the form of special presentations of two sets of special presentations already having been made public by the jury.

Longino Sustained.
The exhaustive investigation, which was virtually ended yesterday after W. Eugene Harrington, well-known civic leader, was called before the jury for information on insurance matters, began at the first meeting of the grand jury in July as the result of charges by Commissioner George F. Longino that the county financial set-up is being wrecked by waste and extravagance which he attributed to the majority faction of the county commission, composed of Dr. Adams and Commissioners Almond and Edwin F. Johnson.

In virtually every charge he made, Longino has been sustained by the jury headed by McCarty.

The July-August body, has stated that the county will be ruined by an orgy of useless spending unless it is stopped. Already the budget is out of balance. Through June $184,000 had been spent in excess of the budget and salaries of county employees have been raised $192,000 for the year.

Banks Can Say Halt.
"It is our firm conviction that in so far as the present county commission is concerned, the banks which are furnishing the borrowed money on which the county is now running are the only agency with power to call a halt (to useless expenditures), since the public sentiment and outspoken verdict of the grand jury have been ignored by the commission," the jurors stated.

"It is furthermore our conviction that, unless a retrenchment policy is adopted immediately, this county will again resort to the spendthrift era of 1923 to 1928, when a surplus of $1,380,790 faded out of the picture and became a deficit of $608,059 in 1928, which deficit has not yet been retired. Still Mr. Johnson (the leader of the majority faction of the present commission), who was on the commission at that time and served twice as chairman of the board and thrice as chairman of public works, points with pride to his past record as a county commissioner," the presentations of the jury declared.

The jurors asserted that no provision has been made this year to reduce the deficit in any way.

Increases Anticipated.
They likewise pointed to the fact that the tax digest, showing a gain of $15,500,000 in taxable values, was largely anticipated in making up the 1935 budget and anyway, the additional revenue of $154,000 will not offset the $192,000 increase in salaries nor the $184,000 which has already been spent in excess of the budget.

The juryman took up fire insurance in detail in recommending that the schedule be changed.

They quoted fire losses thus far this year. On the laundry building at Bellwood camp the county commission was carrying $300 insurance but the estimated value of the structure was $2,500, while the contents, insured at $800, were valued at $5,000.

The boiler room, destroyed in the same fire, was valued at $1,500 and insured for only $250. Thus in this fire the county lost $7,700, which the jury declared should have been more adequately covered by insurance.

Total Increased.
Schedules of 1934 and 1935 insurance carried by the county reveal that the total amount of insurance has been increased approximately $500,000 this year. The grand jury recommended yesterday that the county pre-empt insurance among local taxing agencies on a fair, impartial and equitable basis.

Grand jurymen specifically recommended that the tax rate not be raised in 1935 by the county commissioners. The board is soon to meet to decide the rate and the current budget has previously stated that the budget can be balanced and the county put in good financial shape without increase in tax rates.

Insistence that the next grand jury, which is equipped by law to investigate county affairs, carry on with the probe started by the July-August jury at the request of the county commission, was contained in the presentations yesterday.

It was asked of the succeeding jury that the reforms recommended by the current jury be insisted upon and brought before the commissioners and the public.

Presentments Ignored.
"The county commission, after requesting investigation on the part of the present grand jury of alleged waste and extravagance in the management of county affairs, has ignored our presentments and has refused to act thereon during our term of office in spite of the fact that the chairman, Dr. Adams, promised us in person in the grand jury room on August 9, that a special meeting of the county board would be called to take up the recommendations of our recommendations," the jury stated.

Inasmuch as the 23 jurymen gave a great deal of time and thought to the probe, the jury expressed the opinion that the commissioners should have held that meeting.

"We feel it is high time the citizens of Fulton county become aroused to the state of affairs now existing in the operation of this county, which, as we have said before, is being dominated by three public officials, two of whom are inexperienced in public affairs and who have not even the courage of their own convictions," the presentations said.

Longino, Ragsdale Praised.
Commissioner Longino, who originally brought the charges against the majority faction, and Commissioner J. A. Ragsdale, who form the minority faction, were commended by the grand jury for their efforts to stem the flood of waste and extravagance. But the jury pointed out the two could do little so long as the majority faction continue to control every action of the county board.

Longino and Ragsdale were wholly or in part responsible for economies of the commission last year, when the county stayed within its budget, asserted the jurors.

These two members were unable to bring any decisive action on our August 7 presentations by reason of the ridiculous 'impasse' which is known to all," the jury said.

ITALIAN WARRIORS
DESERT TO ETHIOPIA

tempted to invade Ethiopia without declaring war, which he said Japan did in the case of Manchuria, Ethiopia would declare a war of defense.

IL DUCE WANTS ETHIOPIA
OUSTED FROM LEAGUE
LONDON, Aug. 27.—(P)—Reports from Rome reaching informed quarters tonight indicated Mussolini's first move in the case of the League of Nations September 4 would be an attempted indictment of Ethiopia as a treaty breaker, followed by a demand she be rejected from the League.

Should the demand be ignored IL Duce is likely then to issue an ultimatum that unless some other powers give Italy colonial territory in Africa, he will proceed against Ethiopia, these reports said.

LAVAL SEEKS WORD FOR WHAT IS HAPPENING
PARIS, Aug. 27.—(P)—Premier Pierre Laval, in the rooms where, seven years ago today, the Kellogg-Briand pact "outlawing war" was signed, tried today to put a new face on events in Africa.

He sought to avert conflict by finding a new definition for what is happening in east Africa which would be acceptable alike to Italy, Britain and the League of Nations.

The British say it is "war."
The Italians call it "colonial enterprise."

(If it is war, the British have said they will consider it in violation of the covenant of the League of Nations and therefore ground for the exercise of sanctions, or League-sponsored measures designed to hinder or punish Italy. If it can be considered an armed penetration of Ethiopia which seeks only to insure the safety of border colonies and Italians who desire to settle in Ethiopia, Laval is of the opinion it need not involve Europe and cause the League of Nations to lose face through failure to solve the Italo-Ethiopian problem by peaceful means.)

Confers With Envoys.
Laval talked with both Ambassador Cerutti, of Italy, and Ambassador Clerk, of Great Britain. After his talk with Clerk, reports came from authoritative sources that the British had presented a new plan as a substitute for the use of sanctions. The British would leave Italy, in case of aggression, indicted as a moral offender against the League.

Great Britain would go further, the reports said, by expressing willingness to bring pressure to bear on Emperor Haile Selassie to appeal to the League of Nations for help in running his country. In that event, the League could empower Italy to enter and enforce peace.

EVACUATING FOREIGNERS WARNED TO GUARD PROPERTY
ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 27.—(UP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, accelerating organization of all his meager defense resources, today warned evacuating foreigners to take their property with them or risk its loss in war with Italy.

The foreigners remaining in Addis Ababa may be assured of full protection, he wrote the legations, but the government cannot assume responsibility for a division of his soldiers today: "I wish your arms may always be blessed by victory."

MUSSOLINI BLESSES MANEUVERING SOLDIERS
WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, BOLZANO, Italy, Aug. 27.—(P)—Benito Mussolini said in a speech to a division of his soldiers today: "I wish your arms may always be blessed by victory."

The commander-in-chief also inspected new and hitherto secret Italian developments in arms, including a powerful machine gun, a mortar revolver, and new developments in wireless communication.

Mussolini and King Victor Emmanuel met for the first time during the maneuvers this afternoon.

The maneuvers remaining in Addis Ababa may be assured of full protection, he wrote the legations, but the government cannot assume responsibility for a division of his soldiers today: "I wish your arms may always be blessed by victory."

LONDON HEARS OF IL DUCE'S PLANS
LONDON, Aug. 27.—(P)—Premier Benito Mussolini was quoted by the Daily Mail today as asserting at Bolzano:

"After the cabinet council session tomorrow afternoon, the Italian government will publish a declaration announcing its complete readiness to respect all rights of the British empire, and disposing of any suggestion that Italy has any plans which would be prejudicial to British interests."

VON PAPPEN PROTESTS TO AUSTRIAN OFFICIALS
BEILIN, Aug. 27.—(UP)—While Italian troops—champions of Austrian independence—maneuvered on the Austrian frontier today, tension between Austria and Germany increased.

The government announced that Colonel Franz von Pappen, German ambassador to Vienna, called at the Austrian foreign office and, in the name of the reich government, protested sharply against allegedly incorrect reporting of German events in the Austrian press. He protested also Austrian press attacks on the reich and high German personalities.

ITALY THOUGHTABLE TO MEET ANY WAR COSTS
ROME, Aug. 27.—(P)—Italy's financial condition permits her to contemplate waging war indefinitely—whether in Africa or Europe—informed sources asserted tonight.

The informed sources explained, however, that Italy does not expect to have to support a prolonged campaign in east Africa.

They believed that if war comes between Italy and Ethiopia, it will be a question of one gigantic assault, followed by possible guerrilla engagements during occupation of the empire.

Italy has a gold reserve of approximately 5,000,000,000 lira, which has fluctuated only slightly, due to government control. A little less than 1,000,000,000 lira have been spent already for Italy's east African campaign.

JAPAN SENDING ARMS FOR ETHIOPIAN ARMY
Copyright, 1935, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 28.—(By Wireless).—Arms shipments sufficient to meet the needs of Ethiopia for six months have been arranged with Japan.

This definite assurance was given by an official at the Japanese consulate in Addis Ababa. The shipments will include rifles, machine-guns, revolvers and ammunition.

With arms on the way from Japan, the business of war-making becomes more and more involved in Addis Ababa. Trench and other defense construction plans continue, but the business of war-making soon cease now cheer the daily downpour. The longer it rains, the longer the delay, and the longer the delay, the longer the delay, the nearer come the rifles from Japan.

SELESSIE'S SUBJECTS
LEARN TO SPOT PLANES
LONDON, Aug. 27.—(UP)—Emperor Haile Selassie's subjects slowly are being taught to recognize an airplane, presumably so that they will have sense enough to run for cover if and when Mussolini's air armada roars over Ethiopia.

The London Daily Telegraph's special correspondent in Addis Ababa, Sir Percival Phillips, reported today that during the past week one of the emperor's airplanes has been flying over the city.

"Police have explained the airplane to the simple country-folk," Sir Percival continued, "telling them that it is not supernatural but a man-made contrivance, kin to the motor car, but able to rise like a bird and fly long distances by means of engines and is able to carry weapons which, when dropped to the ground, make a big noise and destroy buildings."

Today's starting, shifting and accelerating waste your money. If your gasoline hasn't these Three Kinds of Power...

THE average motorist piles up 10,000 MILES a year... in short trips mostly. In one day alone, you often start your engine 10 times... shift gears 60 times. This constant "stop-and-go" burns up your gasoline.

To save money, you need a gasoline that's specially made for today's driving. It must have 3 Kinds of Power... power for QUICK STARTING... power for STEADY RUNNING and power for HARD PULLING. You want these 3 kinds of power in perfect balance.

Super-Shell is the first truly balanced gasoline. Fill your tank today at one of the 30,000 neighborly Shell stations.

SAVES GASOLINE IN 3 WAYS

STARTING—With its even volatility, Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline on a "cold" start—even in summer, your engine is "cold" when idle.

PULLING—Super-Shell can save up to a cupful in 10 minutes of hard pulling, or rapid accelerating, or hill climbing.

RUNNING—With its abundant heat units, Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline every hour of steady running, motorists report.

FRANK SPEER AND KIRCHMYER CLASH TONIGHT

Doug Wycoff Returns for Match at Ponce de Leon Park.

Frank Speer, former All-American tackle at Georgia Tech, will meet Roland Kirchmyer, the rough cowboy, in the main match of the weekly mat at the Ponce de Leon park tonight.

Doug Wycoff, another brilliant athlete at Tech, will get another chance to show the fans he is an up-and-coming young heavyweight grappler when he goes up against Abie Rothberg in the opening at 8:15 o'clock.

Joe Cox, former Red Demon, will tackle Darno Ostapovich, a favorite here, in the one-hour semi-windup match. The feature is scheduled for 10 minutes.

Wycoff, one of the greatest stars ever to perform for Georgia Tech on the athletic field, is being given another chance to show his stuff before Atlanta fans. Wycoff requested a main match, but Matchmaker Henry Weber refused this, told the former Jacket that he must prove he is the stuff before he will bill him as an up-and-coming star.

Wycoff has been building himself for the past year and believes he is ready to step with the best of them. A large crowd will be pulling for him tonight. The fans really like him. Rothberg will prove a real test for him and the former Jacket will have to step to win.

Speer, who lately has become one of the demons of the mat and has most of the fans "riding" him every time he steps into the ring, will have his hands full with Kirchmyer tonight. Speer has been using some pretty bad tactics in recent matches, and most of the customers want to see him suffer a real beating. Kirchmyer is the fellow they believe can handle the former Tech line man.

Matchmaker Weber says that ladies will be admitted free of charge when accompanied by a paid escort and he is looking forward to a real test. In order to avoid the late rush at the ticket windows, the pastebards will be placed on sale at the ball park at 6 o'clock. Fans are urged to purchase them early.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(UP)—

The Detroit Tigers assumed a commanding 9-2 game lead over the

COTTON SUBSIDY SET AT 2 CENTS A POUND

probable contingency," producers would be expected to obtain 10-cent loans and wait for the price to recover.

Need 150 Millions. Jones H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, said he believed not more than $150,000,000 would be required to finance the loan.

The loans are made by the Commodity Credit Corporation with funds obtained from the RFC. Jones added the RFC would supply funds for corn and wheat loans if the Agriculture Department so desired. Farm officials stopped talking cotton long enough to say a corn loan was being considered but that no thought had been given to a wheat loan.

Pool Date Set. Opening of the 1935 national pool for the sale of surplus cotton tax exemption certificates September 4 also was announced. The certificates are issued to farmers for cotton grown under Bankhead allotments. A 10-cent tax of 6 cents a pound is imposed on cotton sold in excess of the allotments.

The special pool, now handling certificates left over from last year will close September 3. Frankly puzzled with some aspects of the new cotton plan, the officials were attempting to simplify the subsidy procedure.

But the subsidy is new and one change made in the compromise reached yesterday was expected to result in considerable difficulty. This was the provision that the subsidy should be based on the daily average price at the ten spot markets, rather than on the average for the four months, September 1-January 1.

The daily average provision, an official explained, might result in the government having to make millions of calculations and unprecedented bookkeeping operations.

The Bankhead allotment this year is 10,500,000 bales. It was estimated that growers who produce approximately 90 per cent of the total allotment had signed adjustment contracts. There was said to be about 1,200,000 contract signers.

Only Contractor Eligible. On this basis, it was estimated that from 9,000,000 to 9,500,000 bales of cotton might be placed under loan, for only the contract signers are eligible to apply.

The subsidy must be calculated, unless some method of simplifying the procedure can be found, upon the net weight of each bale. A separate calculation must be made each time an individual sells cotton, and most growers are said to sell cotton on many different days in a ginning season.

Some Disappointed. It was explained that the subsidy will be paid whether or not a farmer obtains a loan of 10 cents a pound. Farm officials were disappointed with the forced compromise. But one said privately he was gratified the AAA had been able to prevent the 12-cent loan demanded by some southern senators.

After a long conference at the White House, where technical details of the plan were discussed, Davis urged farmers to keep complete sales records for their cotton.

HIGH COURT WILL PASS ON TVA AND AAA ACTS

ber 7. Justices already have indicated they will expedite oral argument in the New Deal cases and speed their final decisions. Indications appeared that decisions in all four cases might be handed down by Christmas.

Current reports that such recently enacted measures as the Guffey coal bill, the utilities bill and the social security law might be challenged have drawn intimations that, in so, all of the constitutional questions concerned might not be answered before the 1936 presidential election.

Sought to Aid Measures. The just-adjourned congress sought to bulwark both the AAA and TVA, involved in today's actions. Specific provision, intended to make valid the very points challenged, were added as amendments to the original acts.

Arguing against the Massachusetts circuit court decision in the House Mills case, Solicitor General Stanley Reed asserted in his petition that the AAA represented a transaction of congress that federal assistance was and is needed to restore the normal functioning of the agricultural life of the nation.

Further, he asserted that "such restoration was and remains vital to the halting of the disastrous period of depression which has threatened the country's very structure."

"Errors" Cited. Reed's petition cited 11 "errors" in the circuit court decision. Observers quickly noted, however, that eight of them pertained to the government's taxing power.

The petition paid little or no attention to the court's ruling that Congress in exercising power over interstate commerce. It was this point which the supreme court stressed in its Schechter-NRA decision, which drew from President Roosevelt his statement about back to "the horse and buggy days."

In the TVA case, Pomeroy Johnson, counsel for George Ashwander and other stockholders of the Alabama Power Company, declared the issue presented:

"The basic question whether congress can provide for the construction of plants and buildings for war, departmental or other legitimate national purposes, and thereupon, when it is found that they are overbuilt for national purposes or the purpose is spent or obsolete, or the facility is desired to be held for future use, proceed to authorize direct use of the property or facility by the government itself for the commercial manufacture and sale of any and all commodities which may be possible to produce on or by means of the property, in the general market, in competition with citizens."

Victory for TVA. The government won a TVA victory when the fifth circuit court of appeals at New Orleans reversed a ruling by Federal District Judge Grubb, of Alabama, that the Tennessee Valley act was unconstitutional.

The circuit court held that under the commerce clause of the constitution the federal government had authority to build a dam to improve navigation or to conduct governmental activities in preparation for the exercise of its war powers, and that it may erect on the dam a plant for the manufacture of electricity.

Utility Test Planned. Lawyers, studying the new utility law, for vulnerable spots, asserted that the act would be attacked on the section ordering abolition of most holding companies, could be taken to the supreme court.

The scheme contemplates an application to the Securities Commission for permission to engage in activities which would conflict with the disqualification order two years hence. For instance:

A holding company could seek approval of a bond issue to be backed by unchallengeable assets, such as a first lien on physical property. Such security is recognized by the act itself as valid basis for borrowing money from the public.

However, since the bonds would not mature for some years, and the company would be authorized to operate a dissolution order from the commission, the probabilities were said to be that the commission would refuse to approve the issue.

Such refusal could be taken at once to the courts, challenging the constitutionality of all phases of the law directly involved. Moreover, the act applied application would be pressed and designed so far as possible to bring such a reply from the commission.

Asked their opinion on whether the law could be attacked through such procedure, administration aids who were prominent in the formulation of the bill expressed belief that it could. They were confident, however, that the courts would find the law constitutional.

Three-Corner Attack. Eventually the act is expected to be attacked from three quarters in the power industry. Associated Gas & Electric, which spent nearly $1,000,000 opposing the act, was ready to go ahead almost at once. Cities Service also was looked to for prompt action.

Ultimately, the Edison Electric Institute was expected by utility men to form a pool of its member holding company systems for a concerted assault upon the act, retaining renowned constitutional lawyers to fight the battle.

However, it was indicated the institute, which was represented in the pre-enactment battle by the committee of public utility executives headed by Phillip Gadsden, might hold back for a time, pending some understanding on administration of the act similar to that through which the New York Stock Exchange has worked in cooperation with the Securities Exchange Commission.

High Spots in Laws Passed by Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(P)—The first session of the 74th congress passed much legislation affecting industry and agriculture. Some high spots of these laws:

COAL: Created a national bituminous coal commission to draw codes containing wage, hour, fair practice and price fixing standards.

RAILROADS: Revamped bankruptcy laws; extended office of railroad co-ordinator for one year; set up pension system, with a tax on both carriers and workers for benefit of employees.

UTILITIES: Passed bill to regulate utility companies, giving securities commission authority to outlaw certain holding companies, but permitting the erection of two holding firms upon one "integrated system" of operating companies.

SHIPPING: Also approved amendments to the Tennessee Valley Authority, intended to give the government express power to sell surplus electricity.

AIR LINES: Fixed more definitely responsibility of ship owners for loss of life at sea; extended until March 31 President's authority to cancel ocean mail contracts.

OIL: Enacted Connally bill forbidding shipment of interstate commerce until 1937 of oil produced in excess of quotas fixed by the states.

BUSES AND TRUCKS: Placed federal control of interstate bus and truck operation in the Interstate Commerce Commission.

BANKING: Reorganized federal reserve board and gave it a new open market committee, composed of the board and five banker representatives—control over national credit resources.

INDUSTRY IN GENERAL: Extended skeletonized NIRA until April 1, 1936, with power to help in drafting voluntary wage and hour codes.

Created new national labor board to deal with labor disputes. Set up a new open market committee, with taxes on employers and employees to pay the benefits to workers.

AGRICULTURE: Passed amendments to give farm administration new powers to adjust crop production. Enabled farmers to apply to federal courts for as long as a three-year moratorium on mortgages.

TRADE BODY ATTORNEY PLUNGES TO DEATH. CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—(P)—John A. Thames, 39, a Federal Trade Commission attorney, of Washington, was killed early today when he fell from a sixth floor window of the Commodore hotel here.

"DER KINGFISH" DARES F. D. R. TO EXPLAIN. NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(P)—Unrepentant for the filibuster which stopped social security appropriations, Senator Huey P. Long tonight shouted a "dare" to President Roosevelt to go on the air and explain.

"That filibuster won't hurt me, it will help," he yelled, waving an arm, on his arrival here from Washington. "I dare you to go on the air and defend his action in refusing to let congress vote on wheat and cotton."

The senator reiterated he will support Senator Borah if the Idahoan is nominated for president.

He is sure he will be president himself if Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover are nominated.

He regards Roosevelt's note to Moscow as that of a "faker."

He doesn't know nor care about a reported investigation of his "dictatorship" in Louisiana.

He is writing another book. The Louisiana football team will beat the world this year—and he'll be there to see it.

Getting back to the filibuster, as was the rule during the course of the interview, Senator Long asserted: "The wheat farmers had their throats cut, as the result of adjournment without a vote on the wheat provision. Cotton farmers are not quite as bad off, but they were wrecked, too. We'll be importing cotton within 18 months at this rate."

Congress is a bunch of cowards for standing for it. That doesn't apply to all, but to the majority.

F. D. R. DEFERS SIGNING OF NEUTRALITY BILL. WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(P)—A mandatory law embodying policy intended to safeguard the United States against war today received the approval of President Roosevelt.

A ceremony at which he had intended to sign the resolution, however, was postponed to suit the convenience of members of congress invited to the ceremony.

Those receiving the invitations had participated in framing the legislation, which marks a reversal of the Wilson neutrality program.

will have three democratic and two republican members.

Since Representative Granfield, democrat, Massachusetts, was author of the resolution, it was assumed he would be chairman.

Should views expressed by some anti-Long members be adopted, a subcommittee may visit Louisiana soon to study the manner in which laws rushed through five-day session of state legislatures have affected the election of representatives to the national house.

Anti-Long members from Louisiana were represented as being particularly anxious for the committee to watch the January polls. Long himself and all the house members are up for reelection.

Another objective of the investigation discussed at the capital would be an endeavor to prevent the Long organization from controlling the naming of delegates to the 1936 democratic convention.

The resolution directs the committee to report upon the complaint of "any person, persons, candidates or political committee."

It also authorized for a long-delayed vacation to the tune of an explanation by Senator Huey Long of his filibuster, but with hope for a speedy resolution of the matter.

A tough and probably prolonged election year assembly was projected by such leftover issues as NRA legislation, neutrality, cash bonus, inflation, social security and farm relief.

One of the primary purposes in the house here through the summer months was the desire of New Deal chiefs to wipe from the election year legislative slate virtually every controversy.

Conflicting Claims. Conflicting claims came from the department leaders as they reviewed the accomplishments of the session which died ingloriously at midnight last night with Senator Long's filibuster blocking action on the $102,000,000 third defense session bill.

Senator Robinson, democratic leader, in a statement written for the Associated Press, contended that "Practically every problem that touches human interest and the future of the nation by the legislation enacted."

On the other side, Senator Dickinson, republican, Idaho, in another statement, contended that the session forecast the session would be remembered for "ill-advised legislation," extravagant appropriations and $4,000,000,000 of new debt.

Huey Long Explains. Long, whose five and one-half-hour filibuster held the entire congress at bay, felt called upon to issue a statement explaining his course. He said he had filibustered in protest against the refusal of the administration to let the house vote on the wheat and cotton loan program.

"I wouldn't stand for the high-handed outrage," Long said. "I would rather die and go to hell than submit to a sixth floor window of the Commodore hotel here."

Long and most of his colleagues quickly left the city and its cares today. The big empty capital contrasted sharply with the excitement, crowds and activity of the night before.

U. S. S. BUREAU WISH TO STATE BOARD WISH

President Roosevelt for adjustment of the differences.

Representative Vinson said the letter, which will probably go out tomorrow or next day to Chairman W. E. Clegg, of the state board under the signature of Undersecretary of Agriculture Rex G. Tugwell, will not be subject to the two points objected to by Chairman Wilbur.

Chairman Wilbur related to increased salaries for state highway engineers and the creation of two additional engineering districts.

Governor Talmadge and the state board, while accepting three of the Wallace proposals, made it clear they felt the federal bureau was seeking to interfere too much with state affairs in suggesting changes in the present engineering setup.

Both Senator George and Representative Vinson saw merit in the objections and the board and took steps to persuade the bureau here to modify its stand.

Acceptability Assured. The text of the letter to Chairman Wilbur will not be made public here and therefore will not be available for publication until after release in Atlanta, but the Milledgeville congressman said he read the content with assurance of its acceptability, declaring it left no ground for further conflict.

"I am fully confident of the letter meeting all objections of the state board," he said. "And feel sure that all differences will now be adjusted."

The bureau is asking the state to submit its program of projects for spending the money, inviting a re-establishment of friendly relations and opening the way for the immediate spending of the money that has been tied up.

"With some $10,000,000 of highway funds thus released thousands of new jobs will be created for idle Georgians," he said.

Representative Vinson declined to discuss the Ball's Ferry project, located in his congressional district, and credit for the project to the Georgia money at the start some months ago when the state board refused to include the bridge in its list of projects.

The bridge's fate is still uncertain, but, under the George compromise agreement, funds for its later construction will be withheld from the $10,000,000 expenditure subject to later negotiations to determine its feasibility. Not more than $280,000 because of communist activities in those countries.)

Bridge Fate Uncertain. Representative Vinson declined to discuss the Ball's Ferry project, located in his congressional district, and credit for the project to the Georgia money at the start some months ago when the state board refused to include the bridge in its list of projects.

Not more than $280,000 because of communist activities in those countries.)

Talmadge Meets Roosevelt. Governor Talmadge himself made a trip to Washington for a conference with President Roosevelt at the invitation of Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, in an effort to iron out the difficulties. He got along with Mr. Roosevelt well enough, a display of cordial relations marking their meeting, but later conversations with Mr. MacDonald failed.

After that the situation was allowed to simmer for a while until Senator George made his compromise proposal which the President found acceptable. Secretary Wallace, who has jurisdiction over affairs of the public roads bureau, however, gave a broader scope to the President's attitude than had been anticipated, resulting in the state board and Governor Talmadge objecting to two of the requirements set forth.

Accede to Objections. Pleased with the conciliatory tone of the board's reply to the Wallace letter, administration officials have now evidently decided to go the board one better and accede to its objections. And as Representative Vinson views it all, "the row should now be settled." He undoubtedly feels that in view of part in adjusting the differences the President and state board will ultimately be magnanimous enough to approve the Ball's Ferry bridge for later treatment, but is not making further issue of it at this time.

At one period of the impasse department of agriculture officials are known to have proceeded to the point where they were prepared to set up a separate government agency for spending the money over the heads of the state board through direct dealings with the individual counties and municipalities. Mr. Roosevelt intervened to stop this after protests from Georgia delegation members.

of the money was announced, but indications were given that most of it probably would come from the $4,000,000 of the federal relief fund. Four billion dollars of this is earmarked for providing jobs, the remainder for relief.

To what extent that might be diverted was the chief question. Representative Buchanan, democrat, Texas, chairman of the house appropriations committee, said as he emerged from the talk:

"We'll be able to take care of most all of the most important sections except for aid to the blind, to crippled children and to mothers. That's what Huey Long did."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, and Speaker Byrnes agreed virtually all of the principal items carried in the deficiency bill would be made up.

McCarl did not appear unfavorable, one conferee said. Several of the measures, like the bus and truck regulation, the alcohol control, utility regulation and the Bankhead act, fall under regular department or long-established agencies. It was indicated sufficient funds already allocated to those agencies might be used.

The administration and McCarl, a republican, have been in frequent conflict over New Deal expenditures. Officials believed it would require only about $25,000,000 to finance the security program until congress gets back in session. In their studies of the law, they have reached the conclusion that at least 10 and perhaps 16 or 17 states are entitled to grants for old age pensions.

These studies so far were described as largely superficial. The states named off-hand and subject to a later review by the board were Arkansas, Rhode Island, Vermont, Connecticut, Missouri, Illinois, Florida, Delaware, New York and California.

They also held tentative opinions that six or seven other states had amended their laws during the last eight months to bring them into line with federal requirements.

This would leave almost half of the states that have old age pension laws outside the federal eligibility line, and thus deny them the amount that would be needed to pay pensions from October 1 to December 31.

Bills Affected. The other seven major administrative measures affected by the failure to enact the appropriation bill were the utility law, railroad retirement, alcohol control, Guffey coal law, bus and truck regulations, labor disputes, and administration of the Bankhead cotton act.

The appropriation bill also carried money for AAA potato control, not asked by the administration, the neutrality resolution, civil service examinations, senate investigations, the District of Columbia social security act, a sea food inquiry, the steamboat inspection service, penal institutions, the world power conference and tobacco market plan.

Many of these either will have to be abandoned or greatly curtailed unless the President and his aids find a way of raising the money from the $4,000,000,000 war-relief fund, or other regularly appropriated funds, to carry them on.

In the past, transfers have been made from regular appropriations to take care of deficiencies.

There were reports that in the absence of money the federal insurance board might not make allotments to the states until after the first of next year. Board officials said, however, that they hoped to be working out to provide the fund and start the work at the beginning of October.

point, the soviet government and the communist internationale have been closely associated.

Possible Repercussions. Close observers of soviet-American affairs tabulated this list of possibilities that might be followed by the United States under the circumstances:

1. A formal break in the friendly relations established November 16, 1933, as a result of conferences between President Roosevelt and Foreign Commissar Litvinoff. (Great Britain, China and Mexico severed diplomatic relations with the soviet because of communist activities in those countries.)

2. Maintenance of the embassy in Moscow, but recall of Ambassador Bullitt for a "vacation" in this country. That course was taken by France in 1927 as a sign of its displeasure with communist activities in France.

3. Reduction of official relations between the two nations to the bare-minimum against the mutually friendly diplomatic intercourse of the last two years.

4. Dispatch of another protest in which the "flagrant violations" of the soviet government would be specified to give added weight to generalizations made in the original protest. A new note might also present factual evidence of a relationship existing between the soviet government and the Third International.

On the basis of available information, observers believe that President Roosevelt may forego, for the time being at least, any drastic action.

Mrs. John M. Slaton Attends Fancy Dress Ball at White Sulphur Springs

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA was charmingly represented by Mrs. John M. Slaton at the Venice of the Renaissance fancy dress ball last Friday at The Greenbriar at White Sulphur Springs in West Virginia. It was an exceedingly brilliant affair and Mrs. Slaton was invited to serve on the committee making all the arrangements. Knights in armor guarded every entrance to the ballroom, as well as standing guard at the silver throne placed beneath a cloth of silver canopy.

William Grauer, nationally known mural painter and director of the Old White Art Colony ornamented the Cameo room, the Spring room and the West Terrace with decorations in keeping with the theme of the ball. Among the most striking costumes were those of Mrs. James E. Davidson, who wore black taffeta and silver, with handsome hats of black velvet and large silver plume; Mrs. Robert D. Lewis wore blue taffeta as "Marguerite" from "Faust," and Mrs. Leslie Combs II a flowered satin Louis XV costume. Mrs. Tom M. Girdler's costume was of white taffeta and lace, made along the same eighteenth century lines. Mrs. Frank N. Payne wore a flowing black satin, and her daughter, Miss Katherine Payne, wore a heavily embroidered gown of the colonial period, with lace shawl.

IN STRIKING contrast to the Spanish blond beauty of Virginia Hurt is the brunet loveliness of Jean Faust, of Scarsdale, N. Y., who is an admired guest of Virginia. These college belles roomed together at Mount Holyoke in South Hadley, Mass., and will resume their studies at Mount Holyoke in September.

Jean is studying art and Virginia will major in chemical research. After finishing her course at college, Virginia expects to put her knowledge of chemistry into practical use when she takes up a real career. Jean and Virginia are excellent bridge players, and many of the social affairs revolving around these college belles take the form of contract bridge parties.

When Jean was Virginia's guest at Lakemont she was the center of attraction for a certain Prince Charming, who begged her for an engagement the following week-end. For the reason that two Atlanta beaux were expected for this particular week-end, Jean declined to make a date with the aforementioned admirer. He was one of the kind that believed in the old adage that faint heart never won fair lady. He requested Jean to hang a white shirt on the boathouse if the week-end date failed to arrive. A telegram on Saturday notified Jean that unforeseen circumstances prevented the other beau from keeping his engagement that night. Jean ran to the boathouse, hoisted the white shirt, and Prince Charming arrived at the Rutherford Lipscomb cottage in record-breaking time.

ATLANTA will be represented at the annual fair hops to be given in Bowling Green, Ky., Friday and Saturday evenings of this week by Sara Jenkins and Ann Dargan. This pair of attractive belles departed for the Kentucky city last night amid a shower of farewells extended by a group of friends gathered on the station platform. Attired in the smartest of fall togs, Ann and Sara made a striking pair as they waved good-bye from the train's observation car platform.

While in Bowling Green the Atlantans will be guests of Dulany Fitch, who is enrolled at Emory University. Their host has arranged a number of parties in their honor. And Sally wagers that among the belles assembled from all sections of the country for the fair hops that no two will enjoy greater popularity than Atlanta's representatives.

On Sunday, Ann and Sara will go aboard Dulany's houseboat for a four days' cruise down the Barren river. The girls are scheduled to return home next Thursday, but it wouldn't surprise their friends but what they will be persuaded to prolong their visit in the Blue Grass state through another week-end.

A reception was held Sunday evening in the hall of the Jewish Educational Alliance at which a Dutch supper was served for 150 guests, among whom were visitors from Delaware as well as Mr. and Mrs. Robin, of New York, uncle of Larry Bregman. Max Nieburg was toastmaster and presented the speakers with an appropriate introduction, and delivered a talk which marked him as an able speaker.

Outstanding was the speech made by young Larry Bregman in Hebrew and English, in which he pointed out the significance of the thirteenth birthday of a Jewish boy. Pauline, the five-year-old sister of Larry, extended in the form of a poem an invitation to visit their home and assured the guests welcome at any time. Among the many telegrams received was one from Larry's grandmother who lives in Poland, and from Rabbi and Mrs. Harry B. Epstein, who are vacationing in Chicago. Mr. Bregman left the next day with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robin, for New York city.
